DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Tamir et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5,923,365).

As to claim 1, Tamir teaches a video contents access method that uses trajectories of objects, comprising the steps of: extracting objects from video contents (on video, col. 1 lines 13-16); displaying the movements of said objects as trajectories on a specific projection screen (fig. 1, col. 7 lines 6-21, col. 8 lines 19-35; and fig. 2, col. 8 lines 45-47); specifying locations along said trajectories; and accessing a desired scene contained in said video contents (col. 2 lines 11-15).

As to claim 2, Tamir teaches the trajectories of said objects are those displayed, in order with time for video contents, in a time for video interval between a currently displayed video frame and a preceding video frame displayed a predetermined time period earlier (col. 13 lines 59-63, col. 11 lines 10-15).

As to claim 3, Tamir teaches that a user can control the speed at which said trajectories of said objects are displayed (col. 7 lines 32-37).

As to claim 4, Tamir teaches a scale for representing an important scene is displayed with said trajectories of said objects on a projection screen (image analyzer 50, col. 7 lines 16-21).

As to claim 5, Tamir teaches Traj of said objects are calculated by the following equation: $Traj = (object\ ID, start\ time, end\ time, line\ graph\ representation)$ (col. 2 lines 1-5).

As to claim 6, Tamir clearly shows that video data are either a VC or VD (col. 6 lines 59-64), and it can manage time code (col. 7 lines 32-37).

As to claim 7, Tamir teaches displaying on the same projection screen a window in which images of said contents of said video are displayed and a window in which said trajectories of said objects are displayed (col. 3 lines 3-5, figs. 2 and 4).

As to claim 8, Tamir teaches to specify said locations along said trajectories, a pointing device is used to designate points along said trajectories (figs. 1, 2 and 4, col. 7 lines 38-42).

As to claim 9, Tamir inherently teaches a plurality of video contents are used because Tamir's system could replay a variety of different events such as: basketball, football and soccer game (col. 6 lines 9-10) by a plurality sources such as: a VC, VD or broadcasted transmission and also output live video (col. 6 lines 59-62).

As to claim 10, it is a product claim of method claim 1. Note the rejection of claim 1 above.
